When you open MediaGun, it takes you to this window, the “Backstage” and shows its contents as it was last left before quitting. It checks that media files previously used in any current Playlist are available and, if not, performs a synchronisation from the backup from the cloud. Conversely, it backs up local media files to the cloud, if necessary.

Playlists are compared and synchronised in the same way.

This process is operated in the background and does not hinder the normal use of the app.

This ensures that there won't be any missing files when either building a Playlist or going to the Stage. It's actually not possible to go to the Stage if there are any missing files in the Playlist.

Another advantage of this cloud support is that it offers the user a seamless workflow even when using MediaGun on more than one device. All that is needed is an internet connection.

Synchronisation is completely automatic.

Double-click on any file to see or hear its content.
 Multiple selection cannot be previewed

MS-Office files use a Microsoft Cloud service to be viewed in MediaGun. This method offers several advantages, such as cross-platform and multi-device playback.

It also makes it possible to preview those files with or without a MS-Office / MS- 365 subscription.

Please note that those files need a little extra time to be processed THE FIRST TIME in a given session before they can be previewed.

The names of the first four buttons on the right are self-explanatory and act on the current Playlist.

'Remove Event' deletes the selected Event(s) from the Playlist. It does not delete the actual files.

About Events:

When media files are added to a Playlist, they are more than mere files. They can be made to look different, to be connected to a music track, or to be linked to the next file in the list by a screen transition. That's why we differentiate between media files and Events. "Media files" in the four Media Boxes, and "Events" in a Playlist.

The RUN button takes you to the Stage, which is where your final audience will see your Playlist.

Please note that you can only access the Stage if there are no missing files in your Playlist.

But MediaGun makes it easy to fix any missing file either by restoring it automatically from the Cloud, or allowing you to find it locally.
